DESCRIPCION DEL LIBRO PERSUASION / SANDITON

Persuación, publicada póstumamente en 1818, presenta un cuadro de familia sumamente austeniano: un viudo pomposo que sólo lee el baronetario, una hija soltera llena de pretensiones, una hija casada hipocondríaca y caprichosa, una multitud ruidosa de parientes y vecinos que aparecen por todas partes y, al fondo, en el último rincón, una heroína sensible, paciente y menospreciada. Pero Persuación es la última novela de Jane Austen y su heroína no es ya una muchacha en trance de aprendizaje sino una mujer en su madurez. Una mujer que «había dejado atrás la edad de ruborizarse; pero no, desde luego, la de las emociones»; y que ahora, ocho años después de haber rechazado, persuadida por un mal consejo, al hombre que amaba, ve como éste reaparece en su vida, rico, honorable, pero aún despechado. Una mujer que, quizá por primera vez en la historia de la novela, debe luchar para que el amor le conceda una segunda oportunidad. Esta edición ofrece además, al lector curioso, el jugoso e inédito fragmento de la novela que Jane Austen dejó inacabada al morir, Sanditon.

Sanditon (1817) is an unfinished novel by the English writer Jane Austen. The novel centres on Charlotte Heywood, the eldest daughter of the large family of a country gentleman from Willingden, Sussex. The pressures on Jane Austen to make some adjustments in her style were very strong indeed. The basic characteristic of the Christian was now felt to be her rich inner life, compared with the trivial, unthinking, external lives of those in society. The setting, Sanditon, is a fledgling seaside resort on Britain's south coast, but it is not treated simply as a convenient locale for social interaction, as both Lyme Regis and Bath are in Persuasion. In Sanditon we find a new heroine, Charlotte Heywood, whose clear-sighted common sense is often at war with romance. At the age of twenty-two, Charlotte is about halfway between Pride and Prejudice's Elizabeth Bennet, and the closer-to-spinsterhood Anne Elliot, who, in Persuasion, finds herself in the difficult position of having been persuaded, years prior, to break off an engagement to a 'persuasion' An image should appear at this position in the text. When Jane Austen died in 1817 she left her last novel "Sanditon" unfinished. Persuasion and Sanditon raise important questions for Austen scholarship as well as for the study of domesticity more generally. These novels invite us, perhaps even more directly than her other works, to ask how—if at all—Austen's works have accomplished the ideological work of domestic fiction. A Modern Persuasion. a spirited and impulsive woman who moves from her rural home to Sanditon, a fishing village attempting to reinvent itself as a seaside resort.

It was published at the end of 1817, six months after her death. The story concerns Anne Elliot, a young. I'm never sure, when reading Sanditon, if it reads as it does because it was a rough draft written by a woman already very ill, or if it is evidence of a change in Austen's writing style. In its subject matter and themes, it feels more early Victorian than Regency.
